

A selection of reviews for Burn Cottage Vineyard Pinot Noir 2009

Decanter July 2011, NZ Vintage Report 2009. Bob Campbell MW ★★★★★

I can't remember when I tasted a first release that was this good. One to watch. Drink: 2012–2020

eRobertParker.com Oct 2011. Lisa Perrotti-Brown MW 92 Points

Medium-deep ruby purple coloured, the 2009 Pinot Noir displays intense black cherry, black raspberry and red currant notes over earth, cinnamon, black truffles and underbrush. Medium-full bodied with medium level of silky tannins, the palate lends very good concentration and crisp acid, finishing long and earthy. Drink this one 2012 to 2017+

Australia's Wine Business Magazine May 2011. Nick Stock. 94 points

A new Otago Label that's been long in the making. Impressive depth and character. Impressive definition and detail on the palate, great length, sturdy tannins and bright acidity.

NZ Sunday Star-Times, January 2011. Jane Skilton MW . ★★★★★

A very promising debut, richly textured with ripe fragrant fruit and an underlying sensory edge. Delicious now, though will cellar well.

World Magazine, Winter 2011. John Hawkesby.

The 'Bolter' of the pack comes from a little-known emerging Central Otago producer whose first commercial release is quite astonishing for its sheer beauty... result? New world purity with a European sensibility. Magic with game, lighter meat dishes or anything with mushrooms. A wine that exudes precision and poise. A perfect 10.

Gourmet Traveller Wine June/July 2011. Bob Campbell MW 97 Points ★★★★★

Dense, Powerful Pinot Noir that's loaded with flavour. Layers of red and dark fruits, spice and an interesting savoury edge that's harder to define. Long and seamless. This is clearly a winery with a great future.